

Stars of David come out to play

Deb Filler

NEW Zealand-born comedian Deb Filler will headline a benefit night for the Dayenu Association at Hakoah Club on Sunday, April 16.

Titled "The Stars of David Come Out ...To Play", the evening will include appearances by comics Jackie Loeb and Shelly Silberman

in what the promoters are billing as "a night of fun and friendship in support of the Jewish gay and lesbian community — an opportunity to support tolerance in the community and enjoy comedy with a cause". In addition, there will be brief addresses by "Stars of David" float organiser Dawn Cohen, Mosaic author Diane Armstrong and former NSW Jewish Board of Deputies president Professor Graham de Vahl Davis.

Tickets are $30 at Hakoah or at the door. The evening is being produced by the Age of Leisure Organisation in conjunction with Hakoah.
